

Sample licence for Text and Data Mining of subscribed copyright-protected works and materials

Readable Summary

Users are free:

- to download, extract and index the subscribed Content for TDM
- to store electronic copies of the subscribed Content on their computer or server
- to mount, load, integrate and analyse the Outputs of TDM on their computer or server
- to use TDM Outputs as part of research
- to make the TDM Outputs available on an externally facing website

Under the following conditions:

- they do not use automated methods of crawling, scraping, extracting, searching or indexing the subscribed Content at the Publisher's site
- they only store electronic copies of the subscribed Content needed for their TDM project and they delete all copies of the Content when the projects ends
- they do not create derivative versions of the subscribed Content, except to the extent necessary to perform TDM on that Content
- they do not use the subscribed Content or TDM Outputs in any commercial activity or with any commercial partners
- they do not systematically reproduce the subscribed Content or redistribute it to third parties
- where they make TDM Outputs available on an externally facing website in response to a Search Query, this is limited at any single moment to an Output of no more than 150 characters or 15 words or 1 sentence.
- they do not create derivative products or services using the subscribed Content or TDM Outputs that would compete with the Publisher's products or services

With the understanding that:

- where a User makes TDM Outputs available, original authors are credited and attributions are accompanied by a hyperlink back to the Content on the Publisher's site.
- the licensee complies with the Publisher's policies, including Content security and technical access requirements
- where the licensee is in breach of any conditions of this licence, the Publisher has the right to deny access to any of the subscribed Content
- any of the above conditions can be waived with the permission of the Publisher
- The rights and limitations set out in the full Subscription Agreement still apply without exception