Text and Data Mining Licenses for Europe

Working Group 4

Brussels, 29 May 2013

Carlo Scollo Lavizzari, legal counsel, STM

sample licence clause for Text and Data Mining (TDM)

- publishing sector proposal

- subscribed copyright-protected works and materials

- Not stand-alone; part of an existing license or subscription agreement between a publisher and an institution

Non-subscribed

subscribed

contains the following core clauses:

- clause 1 – use of Content (non commercial research)

- clause 2 – prohibited use of Content

- clause 3 – security, rights, formats, mechanisms

clause 1

Content

- access, download, extract, index Content; locally load & normalise Content for projects

Output

- include Output in research papers; present Output within limits on open web

Communication

- communicate results for non-commercial objectives and without substituting publishers' products or data sets.

clause 2

Content

- translate or modify original Content

- permit 3rd party harvesting Content

- reproduce/retain systematically or redistribute Content

- extract or use commercially

Derivatives, rights information, downloading

- no derivatives that compete with publishers' products/services

Other

- tamper with rights information or meta data

- systematic whole-sale downloading by robots, spiders

clause 3

- agree on method of access (API)

- keep some security and Content behind firewall

- comply with data protection

- scheduling to avoid system crash

- disclaimer – Content used «as is» at miner's risk discussion

- comments / questions?

- volunteers for work ahead?